Prime Time literacy program comes to Norfolk

Prime Time Family Reading Time, a Nebraska Humanities Council (NHC) family literacy program for low-literacy, low-income families, will be presented in Norfolk with opportunities for both Spanish- and English-speaking parents and their children.

Grant Elementary School will host the award-winning series on seven consecutive Thursday nights, Oct. 5 through Nov. 16. The Oct. 19 session will include a visit to the Norfolk Public Library.

This series of reading and discussion is designed for families with children ages six to 10. It includes sessions on determination, greed, cleverness, dreams, and fairness. All books are read and discussed in both English and Spanish.

A discussion leader and a storyteller introduce parents to the benefits and pleasures of reading and discussing stories with their children, and a library representative introduces families to library resources and services. Younger siblings participate in separate pre-reading activities. Each program begins with a light dinner and continues with storytelling and discussion based on award-winning children's literature.

Prime Time reinforces the role of the family in society, encourages parents and children to form bonds over reading and learning together, and teaches parents and children to read and discuss humanities topics. The program also encourages low-literacy, low-income parents to enter or continue their own educational programs to improve their employment opportunities.

"It is so important for children to learn the joys of reading early in life, especially when it involves reading and discussing books with their families. A love for learning through reading has a positive impact on how well a child does in school," said NHC Program Officer Erika Hamilton. "We're pleased to be working with Grant Elementary and Norfolk Public Schools to bring this exciting family literacy program to the citizens of Norfolk."

Initially developed by the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities, Prime Time has been held in Columbus, Grand Island, Lincoln, Omaha, Scottsbluff, South Sioux City, and other Nebraska communities over the last several years.

Bilingual Prime Time programs are sponsored in Nebraska by the NHC, the State of Nebraska, the Nebraska Library Commission, and TierOne Charitable Foundation. Donors for Prime Time in Norfolk include The Connie Fund, Elkhorn Valley Bank & Trust, Read Aloud Norfolk, the Noon Optimist Club of Norfolk and Northeast Community College Early Childhood Program. The NHC is a private, statewide, non-profit affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.
